Hello Everyone

Is it just me or is time warping and doing very strange things at the moment? In Penni du Plessis last newsletter she described her experience of time as being elastic & like a piece of toffee – at times expanded and stretched, and at other times compressed down to very little. It is as if time is losing it's structure in the conventional sense.

Some recent channelled messages I have read talk about this, and how we are moving into the space of no-time. As we expand more into our multidimensional selves, we become able to work more from a place of the ever present NOW that we hear so much about (and understand conceptually, but not necessarily physically). It is an interesting transition process, and has definitely been intensifying over recent months.

We had two very powerful workshops facilitated by Penni du Plessis here in the UK during May, and for most of us the shifts that we experienced were deep and profound. It was also wonderful for me to spend time with Penni who is a dear friend as well as a gifted teacher – her processes and products are truly amazing and provide very powerful support at all levels to help us through these turbulent times. These include the Antanea Technique (for releasing emotional blocks in the body) & it is still one of the processes that I find amazing every time I work with it. For full detail on Penni's work, visit www.divine-space.com. Thank you Penni for sharing your energy and wisdom with us this month.

Two of the featured articles in the newsletter this month are about the current energies & I found it interesting that two totally different sources of information are talking about connections and disconnections (See Solara's Surf Report and Karen Bishop's Energy Alert). I found them both very interesting as I have been experiencing some of that in the past month or so – like strands in a web that have been broken while a new web is being woven, but is not yet completely in place. Some of the new strands have been appearing & bringing in incredible light and support in different ways, while others have been disconnected – whether this is temporary or permanent and what will feature in the new design I don't know yet. I am simply trusting in the process and allowing it to unfold. (there's that word again – TRUST!) . This is not just a metaphor, it is very real as an energetic and physical process, and impacts on our life in many ways – people, situations, work etc.

Our webs and new networks are forming, and in the process we may have to let go of some of the old strands that are not aligned. Even when this happens, it may be temporary as a re-connection then takes place at a different level. The process itself can be challenging and painful and we may go through a mini grieving process with each strand that is disconnected. Look for where this may be happening in your own life, as it is an inevitable part of our evolution. This connection-reconnection also takes place within ourselves as we strive to connect more deeply with our essence. You may feel at times like you have lost the connection, and then suddenly find that it is there in a much deeper, profound way.

I have been incredibly supported through this interesting period by new connections and ways of working differently with some special individuals that have been a part of the web for a while. It is a fascinating process.....

I hope you enjoy the contributions to this month's newsletter, and find the web of your own life brings awareness, enlightenment, peace and joy!!

With love, and abundant blessings

Julie

FROM THE MAY 2008 SURF REPORT

~ FAR DISTANT WORLDS ~

The month of May will continue emphasizing the connection - reconnection theme, with the added element of disconnection thrown into the pot. Important new connections will be made and there will be more reconnecting with people and places from the past. We will also be disconnecting from people, places, activities, responsibilities and jobs that no longer resonate with us. Often this will begin happening on an energetic level long before it is physically visible. The connection that we used to have has suddenly become lifeless and turned into a disconnection. This is all part of the massive passing of the sceptres that is currently taking place.

Our cellular memory banks are being activated as never before, causing our dreams to become the vehicles for profound revelations and visions that, although rarely remembered upon awakening, supply us with the triggers we most need to move ahead in giant leaps. This is propelling us off the map of the known into totally new sectors of the Ultra Greater Reality, what I call Far Distant Worlds.

Much of the focus of May will be on the integration of what we are receiving so we can move forward into our New Lives. We no longer have the option of ignoring it or setting it aside by pretending it isn't real. This plethora of new information and new energies is integrated by thoroughly implementing them into every aspect of our daily lives. They become new threads of our beings that we can proudly and openly wear. And it's essential that we do so as soon as possible, since layers upon layers of new information, new connections, new energies and new opportunities are pouring in.

During this extremely powerful and profound time, many are moving forward into totally new positions. Sometimes this feels like a massive migration on a mythical scale as we all change our existing positions. This is happening both in the physical and non-physical worlds.

May is definitely crunch time when many matters come to a crisis point. Many of us enter the month with both our energy and our finances severely depleted. It feels like it's getting harder and harder to do what we need to do, as if everything is falling apart rather than coming together. We are in the eleventh hour, the time of deepest darkness before the new dawn. Everything is being stripped down to its core truth.

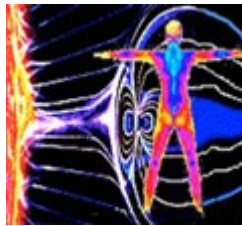

This is precisely the time when we must not give up, for we are so very close to the quantum breakthroughs we have been waiting for. What is required is steady rowing, clear navigation, deft maneuvering and renewed commitment to see it through, no matter what.

3. Natural Food Supplements

I was sent this e-mail via one of my e-mail subscriptions and found it very interesting – it's worth knowing about. Our right to choose to use natural supplements to support healthcare is a cause supported by Dame Judi Dench who narrates the video. Follow the links and read the articles to educate yourself.

It may be that vibrational remedies become even more important in future if the EU goes ahead with plans to restrict availability of natural supplements....Julie.

This message is a little 'off topic' but I hope it may be relevant, as many of those who take an interest in self development also make extensive use of vitamins and supplements.

You may be aware of moves originating in the European Union to regulate and 'harmonise' all food supplements including vitamins, minerals and herbal extracts, under various 'directives' and also proposals from the 'Codex Alimentarius' commission. The latter have been presented blandly as a set of regulations designed simply to ensure the safety of consumers, and as such have received very little attention.

At the same time you may have noted recently a series of scaremongering attacks in the media on the value and safety of various food supplements, based on nothing more than selective 'science' and outright lies.

These strands are closely connected. What you may not yet be aware of (because the 'authorities' want it this way) is that there is in fact a concerted worldwide movement taking place, propelled from behind the scenes by mainly German-based pharmaceutical giants, to completely remove public access to most supplements containing any useful amounts of vitamins and minerals, and most herbal remedies, especially newly discovered ones.

This has ALREADY happened in places where governments have 'jumped the gun', including Germany, several Scandinavian countries, Australia (in an astoundingly cynical coup by their drugs agency, the TGA) and soon in Canada and the UK. Right now, people are being prosecuted under new laws in these countries for selling vitamin C in 200mg pills, among other 'crimes'. If allowed to expand further, Codex Alimentarius will similarly prevent public access to life enhancing supplements in all of the EC including the UK, and quite probably in the US as well under a World Trade Organisation agreement.

Some of those who have gone public on this sinister development hint at genuinely evil motives such as population control by secretive world organisations like the self-styled 'Illuminati', others at simple corporate greed and political corruption. I don't pretend to know what the precise motivation behind these proposals is, or why our legislators seem so ready to accept and implement this gross infringement of our liberty - I simply don't move in those circles. But I DO know that if the Codex does become law here in the UK, my health and that of my family will suffer, and I will lose any ability to choose a natural remedy for any health problems, rather than be prescribed an artificial drug. The same will be true for everyone affected, whether they live here, in Europe, Australasia or the US. Estimates of the unnecessary suffering and numbers of early deaths which will result from withdrawal of all health supplements from public access are terrifying.

Several organisations have formed to fight these proposals, and have had some limited success. However the main weapons of the perpetrators are public ignorance and indifference, or even support resulting from the cloud of misinformation they have managed to feed to a technically ignorant and unquestioning media. This would change if more people knew about what is actually proposed, and how soon it is going to become reality if it is not stopped (next year, 2009).

So if you care about health freedom - the liberty to choose for yourself what supplements you use - I urge you to find out as much as you can, and tell everyone you know about what you discover. I have posted some more information on our health information web site at <http://www.health-answers.co.uk/index.htm> and also posted an article about the truly frightening tale of what has already happened in Australia, at http://www.health-answers.co.uk/a_dire_warning.htm.

On the home page you will find a movie entitled "We Become Silent - The Last Days of Health Freedom", which I strongly urge you to watch, plus links to a summary in PDF format and to the main international organisation that is fighting Codex, the Alliance for Natural Health.

Please do not just ignore what is happening and assume that others will sort it out - it is much too important for that. Our freedom and our rights to choose are being taken away one by one and it is time to take a stand.

With best regards,

Peter Roe

4. Whats Up on Planet Earth (Karen Bishop) The Energies of May, June and more about 2012

Greetings,

The planet is continuing its process of turning inside out as it strives to align with a higher vibration or with new ways of living and being within a very new reality.

Much which existed in realities of the past, or within a lower vibrating dimension are becoming merely an illusion now as there is very little left to hold onto. In years past we may have imagined a higher vibrating world or reality for ourselves, and hence, this was the seeming illusion at that time. Now, the illusion is what is left of the old world, or the old ways of living and being, the old structures, and the old systems of survival. There is nothing left for them to adhere to and thus, they only really exist within our imaginations.

Yes, as we progress further and further into the higher realms, we have less and less of the old to hold onto. This can create a feeling of falling down a deep hole with nothing to grasp onto, or no apparent anchor. We may feel as though there is not much surrounding us now which feels remotely right or good, or even perhaps that we are existing in a vacuum all by ourselves...some kind of vortex of emptiness and detachment with no apparent connections to much of anything else.

I can assure you, all is right on track with our spiritual evolutionary process. All is right where in needs to be for this phase of the amazing ascension process we have chosen to undertake. And this current situation is only present because we have made so much progress thus far.

In the old 3D reality, dying involves letting go of much, a great and intense release, and then whoooosh!...we are in the higher realms. After we arrive, many times we immediately connect with our loved ones or those who give us comfort as we attempt to re-connect to a new reality in a very new place. At first we may not know where we are and may feel confused. But then a loved one or manifestation which brings us comfort arrives and we feel oh so much better. And after awhile, we regain our bearings and are then able to progress in a very new way with much more ease.

And this is what is occurring now. As the ascension process involves dying while we are alive, only in smaller stages which are palpable, we are now fully residing in a higher dimension as we have completed our journey through the tunnel and onto the other side of this current phase. So then, many are finding themselves re-connecting with friends and loved ones and re-establishing connections that make one feel oh so much better, or at least able to find some kind of shore or anchor to hold onto while we seemingly exist in the emptiness.

This is an important part of the process. If you have not yet had this experience in the physical, you may be having it during your dreamtime. Re-connecting with the old, or with energies which make us feel good again, involves the first stage of the re-connection process for our new existence in the higher realms. With much else having fallen away or no longer working for us, connecting to others involving the energy of love always works. And this brings us to our next evolutionary stage as well.

Here in the US we are experiencing a recession. Food and gas prices are becoming unmanageable and are beginning to affect many. This is part of the plan. Nothing is wrong here. The US has always been the forerunner and the superpower, and now it is re-defining and re-setting itself as it begins its alignment more fully with the higher realms.

We are thus entering the stage where we will be connecting much more fully with our brothers and sisters, our neighbors, and our loved ones. These seemingly unmanageable conditions are creating the need for unity. There has been a severe lack of unity on this planet for a very long time, and it is about to begin the process of change. Going it alone, taking care of oneself only, and having to do it all are ways which do not exist in the higher realms.

And because of this, it can be easy to see who will be our next President here in the US. This is where the planet is vibrating and he will be a match. All in divine and perfect order.

Because of this new unity that currently exists with the new energies, it can feel downright unbearable when it does not manifest in form. Many are vibrating there within right now, and when the outside manifestations do not match the inside vibrations, we can literally feel sick inside as we are not a match for our environment. This has always been one of the challenges of the ascension process....not matching our outside reality as it has not yet caught up. And depression is many times the outcome, but only for temporary and brief periods (if you are one who has experienced depression for long periods of time, I would encourage you to seek help, as it is readily available and may not always be attributed to the ascension process).

These current economic conditions we may be finding ourselves in are only serving to encourage us to speak to our neighbors face to face...to be there for each other....to help and support each other...and to connect more fully to our area of immediate location....our community. This does not mean that we need never tend to the planet as a whole. Quite the contrary as unity has many boundaries and many levels.

As we have succeeded in emptying out so much, we are now poised to re-connect once again. And what we re-connect to will be very different than what we have connected to before. This is because we are vibrating higher now and will attract much more pleasant and incredible experiences for ourselves.

Now, in addition, we are being greatly encouraged to connect with each other. As the Hopi quite eloquently have said, "We are the ones we have been waiting for." These current planetary conditions may feel downright awful, but they are here for a reason and very much a part of the process.

June

As June arrives, so will more of our new connections. With things finally calming down a bit for many, as we have aligned more readily now with the new, it can be a good time in latter May and into June to begin the process of tying up loose ends and readying for our new endeavors and new connections. We may now have the time to get the things done which we could not before, as too much had landed upon us during the overload of energy phase we most recently experienced in April and the first half of May. And with the advent of Mercury turning retrograde from May 26 to June 19 or 20, we will be assisted in this process.

Much more will come for us in June. Things will be lining up. We will connect with new people and new things. Our new beginnings will finally begin beginning! We will come together much more as a whole. We will unite with those who match us in better ways.

With the current emptiness we may find ourselves in, it may seem that much is in dire straits, but what we are seeing is simply the emptiness. There is nothing really there yet to see or to connect to. We are neither here nor there. Our new connections have yet to be established, and the theme of this new, again, is a connection to each other.

There has been much energy and focus floating around about the year 2012. Many might say it marks the end of the world. And many are focusing on this event instead of focusing on where they are now.

2012 will simply mark the end of an era or reality. The planets will be positioned in such a way that a signal or benchmark will have been reached. For many of us who are sensitive, we may feel this event very intensely within ourselves. It will mean that a completion has occurred, and we are right on track with this benchmark. So then, from now until 2012, we will be experiencing a step-by-step process of releasing the old and arriving in the new.

When 2012 arrives, there will be no catastrophes, dire events, or great suffering. We will already be where we need to be, and this event will simply validate the fact that we have done what we needed to do as a planet and thus arrived here at this time. And it will be then that the beginning of the new, or the rebuilding of the planet will be put into play in full force. And by then, each and every one of us will know exactly what we are doing and what is indeed occurring.

Until then, we will be moving ahead in steps, being right where each of us needs to be, introducing the new, and staying safe and secure while the planet continues with its fall. The re-building of the planet will really begin in earnest after December of 2012. So then, we are not quite there yet. But by the time 2012 arrives, we will have become much more connected to our souls or higher selves and will then really and truly know what it is that we came to create and who we are in regard to our own special contribution.

There are many different stages that each of us can find ourselves in. Some are ready now, and others are climbing up the rungs of the ladder to heaven. All rightly so. If things had shifted over in one big whoooosh!, we would be much too traumatized and would certainly not be able to handle something like this. And in addition, we are the ultimate creators and we get to choose what we want things to look like!

So for now, know that our new connections are about to begin, change is about to occur on an intense level, we are about to become very involved in ushering in the new and taking a stand, and many of us will begin the life of our dreams.

Wishing you heaven in your heart, starlight in your soul, and miracles in your life in these miraculous times...

Until next time,

Karen

5. Shape Power

This article was written some time ago as the foreword to a book by Dan Davidson but is still incredibly relevant and gives us some deep insights into the power of 3-dimensional shapes on our physical environment. It makes for interesting reading.....Don't underestimate the power in the diamond!! Julie

Forward to Shape Power
by Jerry W. Decker

There are fields of study which are relatively unknown to the general public. Though 'Pyramid Power' is well known, few have pursued it to other geometric forms and the phenomena which can be produced by understanding what is happening. Some of the key early researchers into Shape Power and the more specific Pyramid Power include Pavlita, Belizal, Turenne, Drbal and Flanagan.

Practical Aether Engineering is accomplished in nature by the use of various geometric forms and patterns as witnessed in the fibonacci series, fractals, tiles, cones and tetrahedral shapes. When one understands that Aether, being the basic substrate of the universe, can be interferred with to such a degree as to produce all manner of energy and matter aggregations, it follows that everything is a result of Aether Engineering to various degrees.

Dan Davidson has been on the cutting edge of the aether engineering field for most of his adult life. In our many discussions and information exchanges over the years, I have found Dan to be one of the most reliable, consistent and serious investigators I've had the privilege to know. Few people have Dan's natural ability to cut to the chase and look for what is practical in the alternative science fields, as opposed to those who prefer to promote phenomena as unknowable mysteries or unproven claims.

It takes not only a great amount of dedication and perseverance, but also a considerable investment of personal time and money to make a difference. I have found that Dan puts his money and time where his mouth is and actually does the experiments to refute or validate claims. One other key gift that I have found Dan to possess is his openness to use other than mechanistic approaches in the study of alternative science.

For instance, in some case, Metaphysics is just as valid a tool as is the use of hardware and it is a rare gift indeed to be able and willing to fill in those missing gaps by using information derived from such sources.

As far as I'm concerned, it is irrelevant as to the information sources that lead to a new technology, only that it works as claimed and can be replicated by others and put into practical use by everyone.

When you read Shape Power, you should keep in mind that Dan is describing a form of aether engineering in its early stages. Recent and current events lend ever greater credence to the idea that long dead civilizations understood these aether principles and used them in their everyday lives.

I believe that what you will read in Shape Power is a description of what will eventually lead to radical new technologies.

The essence of how geometric patterns can influence energy flows is exactly the same as how antennas and other resonating structures work. Since everything resonates and establishes an information and energy transfer between two or more resonant bodies, then a two dimensional pattern can precisely resonate to a three dimensional structure.

Just as a microwave horn or an antenna collects or transmits wave energy, so too can geometric patterns be used to collect, transmit or modulate surrounding energy fields, including aether. Entomologist Phil Callahan has shown how insects and some plants use geometric shapes to collect and transmit electromagnetic and acoustic waves.

17th century Cymatics researcher Ernst Chaldni found that vibrating waveplates would allow you to actually see sound waves as a two dimensional image. Hans Jenny discovered how to expand these two dimensional images into three dimensional forms which clearly show the shape of both simple and complex waves.

John W. Keely used such vibrating waveplates as an early, yet more advanced form of oscilloscope, allowing him to see not only the waves but how they interacted with each other. The waveplate principle was the basis for his ultraviolet projection microscope which allowed him to view vibrating atoms on a screen.

Modern experiments with ferrofluids driven by a speaker magnet show an amazingly complex and beautiful display of either static or dynamic three dimensional wave structures, depending on whether the tones are fixed or changing.

In metaphysics, we find the use of geometric mandalas as consciousness focusing tools. These serve as the two dimensional form. When this two dimensional form is expanded into three dimensions, the mandala now becomes the vocalized spatial pattern called the mantra (yantra). Once converted into three dimensions, it now has an energetic structure.

The geometric principles of Shape Power as described in this book are these two dimensional forms functioning as aetheric waveguides.

Shape Power geometries are routinely used in the protective rings of ceremonial magic, the construction of amulets and talismans as well as the sigils (signatures) of various demonic or angelic entities. These patterns produce correspondences (resonances) to establish a contact with the desired entity or influence. By stimulating such a Shape Power geometry, you literally evoke or call forth the influence, just like making a phonecall.

There is a story that a group of experimenters etched the sigil of the elemental spirit of wind onto a printed circuit board. The board was subject to a high density fluctuating magnetic field (using various frequencies until an effect was noted). After a few minutes of excitation, the wind outside the building took on tornadic velocities and the building collapsed as the wind entity attempted to interphase with the resonator.

In a more practical sense, Shape Power can be understood as a means of biasing energy flows into a preferred pathway. That pathway is the geometry that reflects as a 3 dimensional structure that resonates and exchanges energy with other like resonant structures because they are now tuned.

Dan describes an interesting finding where a flow in a two dimensional pattern can be biased to follow a given pathway. He found that the pattern must be drawn with one continuous stroke of the pen, instead of being drawn in sections. As I understand this, as the pen or pencil moves to draw the pattern, deposited crystals point in the direction of the pathway, serving as a kind of waveguide for subtle or aether energy.

Perhaps something of this nature might serve to create a conduit which biases energy to flow into a collector. Once the collector is charged, it can be extracted by draining it off or as a sudden discharge.

Another interesting Shape Power correlation comes from a 'secret' alchemical meeting held in Chicago several years ago. The claim was that an LSD molecule was photographed under a stereo microscope and the frequency of the atoms making up the molecule were mapped to musical notes. This provided an acoustic 'song of LSD'. At a meeting of some 400 people, an image of the LSD molecule was projected onto a screen while the musical pattern was played. Everyone in the room was supposed to have gone on a virtual LSD trip, lasting several hours and without any chemical influence whatsoever.

We thus have the two dimensional image on the screen, resonating and empowering the three dimensional acoustic image to produce a physical effect. This is Shape Power.

Another claim that illustrates how Shape Power could be used is in the Incunabula files. Under the premise that there are an infinite number of other worlds coexisting with us but slightly out of phase, a device was created that used a sensory deprivation tank, a television screen to project a two dimensional pattern and a helmet to send out a three dimensional electromagnetic pattern that resonated to the two dimensional image.

The Incunabula files indicate that the mandala/mantra for 5 alternate Earth's had been found and that a subject could be physically shifted to another reality simply by being exposed to the 2D and 3D map for it. Again, Shape Power.

Science fiction writer John Campbell wrote a story about the Hieronymous radionics machine, where a blank plastic credit card was heated to soften the plastic. A radionics machine was tuned to a given pattern (signature) which was electrostatically projected between two metal plates. When the heated plastic was placed between the plates and allowed to cool, an electret was formed which continued to broadcast the pattern without any outside source of power. The pattern is a signature which has a three dimensional Shape that would resonate to a tuned reality as determined by the will of the radionic machine operator.

Dr. Thelma Moss at UCLA determined the brainwave patterns for various emotional and physical states. These patterns, recorded on a chart recorder in two dimensions, can be projected into a subject to produce a desired effect. The projected pattern is again three dimensional and thus a Shape. Dr. Michael Persinger has found that thoughts occur in the brain as three dimensional forms, which are reduced by instrumentation to two dimensional patterns.

The Egyptian god Thoth was keeper of the Words of Power, which could produce controlled phenomena when spoken with the correct intonation and pronunciation. In the case of Isis healing her child of a fatal scorpion bite, the use of the word of power caused the poison to be expelled from the body and the life force to return. Other legends and myths also refer to the use of such words of power. The words of power produced a three dimensional pattern which would resonate with the aether to produce a desired effect in matter or energy.

Edward Leedskalnin, builder of the famous Coral Castle in Homestead, Florida claimed he had rediscovered how the Egyptians built the pyramids. We must take him seriously because he left the entire castle as a physical proof of his ability to move large stones without the use of equipment. Neighbors said he 'sang' to the stones, but there was never an eyewitness to the lifting. Perhaps he discovered the words of power needed to deflect gravity to produce levitation.

One of the greatest problems with Shape Power at its current stage, is the lack of instrumentation that can directly detect quantified changes in aether. The secondary and tertiary effects of aether which manifest in the forms of magnetism, electricity and gravity fluctuations as well as the use of sensitives is a truly inspired approach.

Along with the use of the voltmeter, gaussmeter, ammeter, radionics machines and gravity wave sensor, living organisms such as plants can also show beneficial or detrimental effects from a pattern being tested. Muscle testing using Kinesiology is yet another means of determining whether a pattern is generally harmful or beneficial to a living system.

What would be some of the practical uses of Shape Power once the process was understood?

- 1) The development of tuned patterns that can be worn on the body to redirect ambient energy in such a way as to; protect one from harmful energies or to attract beneficial energies. Students of the occult refer to these as amulets or talismans.
- 2) In the course of my life, I've often experienced people who unknowingly cause machines to malfunction by their very presence. A pattern could be created that would filter such detrimental or enharmonious fields and cancel them out by using a 180 degree phase shift. Such a technique could extend the life and uptime of any type of equipment.
- 3) An entirely new branch of energetic medicine using specific 2D and 3D projected patterns to produce a very real effect from such virtual stimulations. There would be no drugs or physical pollutants which often lead to side effects.

4) Patterns that might help to shunt energy into or around a near unity machine to drive it into a beyond unity condition.

5) Interactions with the aether to control its flow into matter, thus altering its weight, characteristics or very existence.

Clearly, Shape Power has many possible uses and the avenues for discovery are wide open to those who wish to pursue the subject. Dan has shared his knowledge so that others will be inspired and see the possibilities of how Shape Power can be used to improve our lives.

6. Book Recommendations

Now and again I like to pass on my thoughts on what I have enjoyed reading recently & this next one is not really a new book, but one which I take out to read whenever I feel I need a bit of lightening up! So my recommendation for this month is :

God is no Laughing Matter by Julia Cameron

I have read this book a few times and it always brings a smile to my face. It is delightfully written & great for when we find ourselves taking life or our Spiritual Practices a bit too seriously! Julia has an almost irreverent way of sending up some of the “New Age” practices and stereotypical individuals – as an example, she talks about New Age Rage (it’s not done to get angry!), Spiritual Cellulite, Spiritual Bullies etc.

You can find the book at www.amazon.co.uk -definitely worth having on your bookshelf!
